It is manifest that steps must be taken to quidate debts now due, for the credit of the state must be maintained at all huzards. As to what the estimated expenses and revenues of the present fiscal year may be, I do not know I fear, however, that the present tax the present tax expenses but as I have not tee necessary data before ms, I can not speak with any degree of certainty. I shall recommend certain eforms, which, if adopted, will, in my judg ment, curtail expenses and increase the reveue. Some of thess, however, can not be made effective for some time to come: othere may prove beneficial during the present I submit to your wisdom on full information after inspection of auditor's report (which should be obtained at as early a date as possible) and a slose scrutiny of all the surroundings, whether or not the rate of taxation should be insreased, or what should be done to provide payment of secrued indebtsdness

In the federal and many state courts of the union it has proven quite efficacious, while having the jury to pass on guilt end its degree, to clothe the judge with power to fix he puoishment Doubtless the adoption of this rule in Kentucky would save the state housands of dollars, and at the same time resuit in more speedy punishment of criminals.

The abolition of the office of commonwealth's attorney was ungusstionship contemplated h

In many of the states of the union the office does not exist, and the laws in such states are equally By placing in the hands of the cousty attorney all procesutions, and giving him a fair percest-age on fines and forfeitures, in addition to allewances made by the counties, the office would be more desirable and be sought by a good class of competent lawyers. I do not meas by this to insinuate that such offices are not now filed by competent gestlemen, but that men of larger experience, who, in many instances, et a not now afford to take the place would readily ascept it on account of the inereased spiary. The office of the register of the land office has for years been a source of expense, without corresponding benefit to the state. The constitution elearly contemplated ita aboiltion, and I trust you may see fit to aboilsh it at this session, placing the books and papers of the office in the hands of the auditor or socretary of state, after the expiration of the present term, and providing one cierk to look after the discharge of ite du lee. And in this connection your attention is called to the fact that patents are being constantly issued for the land already aptitlee and lessen the vaine of real estate. It is auggested that you may require every person asking for a survey and warrant to notify the county processioners, and have them give notice to all persons who have lands adjoining the land sought to be appropriated, and all others who are known to them to have any claim upon the adjoining lands, or that sought to be patented, at the time of making the suragricultural bureau cost the state annually a This argument can not be sustained because i
